

Szulo's piece on Vietnam, by the way, appeared in a very full version in the Outlook section of the Post for June 2, in case you missed it. It's a cool and dispassionate account of how HK, as in HK, dragged out the negotiations, including the POW business, for maximum political effect; the mistakes and miscalculations involved, etc. etc. This, you are correct, it appears to represent faithfully what the CIA faction in the CIA would want said and in many places actually seems to use wording that could be attributed to them. If this is so, it could be one of the main reasons for HK's tantrum in Saigon, after the leak of his business proclivities were merely the cover reason, as charged with the press. There are other factors, but I think the article is more true to what HK is than the press, which is safe in leaving him in complete hands. His motives appear to be very real.
